Guidelines for Examination E-VIII, 2 (Further processing) and E-VIII, 3.1.3
E-IX, 2.3.1 (Representation, address for correspondence)

Comment:
A good paralegal will perform all acts of C, including the appointment of the representative.

However, formally/grammatically D can also be considered as a correct answer to the question, because the appointment of the professional representative can be done later (if the translation is supplied and the fees are paid, but no professional representative has been appointed, the JP applicant may be invited to appoint a professional representative under R 163(5) EPC. The procedural acts of requesting examination and filing the translation could also be considered as unsigned documents, because the JP applicant is not entitled to sign. He might receive an invitation under R 50(3) EPC to supply a missing signature, which can be fulfilled by appointing a professional representative.
